

Celebrating Diversity

As a global logistics company, Logistics Plus® has employees that represent every gender and a multitude of cultures and religions around the world.

- + Erie, Pennsylvania was once a vibrant hub for the Midwest until it was hit hard during the past two recessions. Despite uphill challenges, our owner purchased Erie's old, dilapidated train station in 2003, renovated it, and made it the company's global headquarters in 2004.
- + The 50 country flags that fly atop of Erie's historic Union Station showcase the nationality of one of our employees or a prominent place where we do business.
- + Logistics Plus regularly has cultural and ethnic events that provide employees the ability to experience various cultures.
- + Logistics Plus actively promotes our own culture that is built on inclusion and celebration of our own diversity.
- + Logistics Plus has commissioned the paintings of several local buildings and bridges in an effort to welcome visitors to the area.
- + Logistics Plus also has an ongoing internship program that has seen hundreds of local college students earn valuable experience and, in many cases, find permanent employment close to home.
